PRAYERS FOR DEMOCRATS

Ministers of the City as a Body Endorsed the Democratic Officers.

Prayers Offered Last December Will Be Answered
By the People Next Week—Vital Questions.

WHO IS PRAYING FOR THE BOLTERS?

Above and beyond all questions of party regularity, of Democracy or Republicanism, of white rule or of the domination of the city by men elected by the negro vote, rises the great moral questions of law and order, of decency and sobriety, of Sabbath observance and social purity.

For nine years the people of Hopkinsville have trusted the Democratic party with power. They have seen the city prosper even in times of panic. They have never been called upon to witness a spirit of unchecked lawlessness. The people know what sort of rule to expect from Democrats. They know that there will be tolerated no open saloons on Sunday, no selling of liquor to minors or inebriates. They know that a fearless Judge, who can neither be bought nor bullied, will enforce to the very letter the laws he has sworn to uphold.

The people know that there will be no open gambling houses permitted to exist. If such houses are here now they are not open. If any man knows of their existence he has only to notify the officials, and they will be suppressed. Even private gambling games are no longer heard of, because the court records show that they are broken up and the parties fined without fear or favor. No city in Kentucky is freer from the gambling evil than Hopkinsville, and the Democratic party is entitled to all the credit, because the Democrats have been in power for years.

The good people of the city know that houses of prostitution will not be allowed under Democratic control. There is perhaps no other city as large as Hopkinsville in all Kentucky, where such evils are absolutely unknown. No man can point to such a house that is known to the public.

The Democrats do not have to deal in promises that may or may not be kept. The people know that the laws have been enforced, are now being enforced and will be enforced in the future.

Can we say as much for the other side? To begin with, no party can be held responsible for the proper conduct of a council, the members of which would be without party allegiance. The mixed ticket is made up of men who have no sort of affiliation with the Democratic party. They are appealing to Republicans for support while protesting to Democrats that they are not Republicans. If they should get into office and prove themselves unfit to govern the city, the Republicans who will furnish them nine-tenths of their votes would be the first to disown them. If on the other hand they should turn the city over to the Republicans, we should hear no more of their Democratic pretensions. Indeed it is even whispered now that the ring-leader of the gang, whose mania for office is without parallel, is liable to blossom out as a candidate for Mayor, for county clerk or for any other office that Republicans could be induced to aid him in securing. It is safe to conclude that the people would be doing a very risky business to put into office this conglomeration that is made up in part at least of those who have been weighed in their own device and set aside by the Democrats of their respective wards for better men.

If they were Republicans we might reasonably infer that they were running upon the Republican platform. But they deny that they are Republicans, but accompany the denial with a wink when Republicans are anywhere about.

They are an aggregation of what-is-its, of name-it-and-take-its, of office-hunters who are anything to get office and who "wear out" a party every two years.

We have the names of men who are supporting at least one of these candidates, giving as a reason that he is in favor of running "a wide open town." These men may not be authorized to speak for the candidates they support, but this is the reason they give for their support.

The whisky men are also supporting the mixed ticket because they expect some sort of advantage to come to them from their election.

These over-zealous friends of the mixed ticket may be talking too much or they may be thrusting unsolicited favors upon those who, like Caesar's wife, are above suspicion.

But who knows? Who can say what the people would get when they were called upon to open this sealed prize-box ticket?

In contrast to this concealment of views, to this uncertainty upon vital issues, we would ask the good people of Hopkinsville, the Christian people of all parties, to read this testimonial from the ministers of the city, given to the City Judge and other officials, who have enforced the laws and who now ask an endorsement at the hands of their fellow citizens:

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 23, 1898.
JUDGE BUCKNER LEAVELL:

The following was unanimously adopted yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the ministers of the city:

"Whereas, We the pastors of the churches in Hopkinsville, have learned of the vigorous and courageous efforts of our City Judge, Buckner Leavell, and other city officials, co-operating with him, to enforce the law, especially concerning the illegal sale of intoxicants, and

"Whereas, The moral support and co-operation of the pastors and the churches is earnestly desired and will be peculiarly helpful at this time, therefore

"Resolved, That we heartily appreciate the vigorous, faithful and strict enforcement of law, and hereby assure the officials of our sympathy, prayers and co-operation in the use of every lawful and wise means to prevent crime in our city, and call special attention to the violation of Sabbath laws.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be given to Judge Leavell with the request that he read them to the officials co-operating with him and that we, the pastors, read these Resolutions to our respective congregations, requesting them to encourage and strengthen the faithful officials in their enforcement of law in our city and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to our city papers with the request that they be published.

(Signed) H. D. SMITH, Secretary.

Will the voters of Hopkinsville refuse to endorse these faithful officials whose praises have been sounded from every pulpit in the city and who have the prayers and the commendation of ministers of God, irrespective of party? These are the officials who are now asking a re-election. This endorsement came voluntarily to them at a time when there was no political ends to serve. It was from godly men, who are not partisans, but who stood up in their pulpits and testified to the "vigorous, faithful and strict enforcement of law" by the Democratic officials now standing for re-election.

CRIME OF CAIN.

John Robinson Kills His Brother at Crofton.

Held For Murder and Now In Jail Awaiting Examining Trial.

George Robinson, a well known colored school teacher at Crofton, was shot and instantly killed Friday by his brother John Robinson. They were in a corn field together and there were no witnesses to the killing.

Coroner Allensworth held an inquest and found a verdict of murder.

Wm. Dickerson testified that he heard John Robinson say in September that he intended to kill George Robinson. He told George of the threats.

Bluford Clark testified that he saw from the tracks made by George that he was going from John when killed, ten steps distant. John's tracks showed that he was sitting behind a stump. He knew his tracks as he had a crooked foot.

Hannah Robinson, mother of the men, testified that they were full brothers. John is 38 and George was 32. She said she heard John say about Oct. 1 that he was going to have his corn (partnership crop) or kill somebody. George told John to stay until Christmas and they would divide it equally. George told John the day before not to move the corn off the place. John again said half an hour before the killing that he was going to have his corn or kill somebody. George did not hear this. Soon afterwards George went out of doors without his hat. In a few minutes I heard the report of the gun. It was about daylight. I saw John coming and asked him if he had killed his brother and he said he didn't know. I went on and found George dead. I then went to the lot and told John he had killed his brother and he said he didn't care if he had. John's sister also testified that John had threatened George's life.

Harris Laffoon stated that John came to his house the night before and left an old gun and took the shotgun used in the killing.

The jury held John Robinson guilty of cold blooded murder and he is now in jail to await the action of the next grand jury.

It looks very much like a hanging case.
